B.A. English Prev & 1 2 3... 4 &gt; Next B2 Commonly confused words 30 mins Efficiently and efficiently. These are two of the most confusing words in English and are often misused by students. In our spreadsheet, we focus on words that are often confused in English to show students how they should be used. This additional spreadsheet includes 3 activities in which students will study 16 pairs of confusing words, nonies, anolym and phuse. If you want to add some more, check out the list of confusing words overseen by Cambridge Dictionary. WHICH IS WHICH In the first task, students get confusing pairs of words, for example, effect and influence, enhancement and increase, briefly and concisely, etc. They also receive two sentences in each point. Their task is to complete sentences with the correct words from the pairs. There are eight pairs of such confusing words. In the second exercise, students read each point and they must choose which sentence is right and which is wrong. To give you an example of it, look at the sentence below. Alex knows his limitations. He was aware of his limitations. He was a very dedicated man. WRITE The spreadsheet ends with a short write task. Students should select five bold words from un selected sentences in the previous exercise and write sentences with each word they have chosen.
